Sir:

The movements resulty made throughout the sountry, to see the remainder of irrelant Linson, render necessary some counterastion on the part of those un walitimal tries. If the Union, we dignize from the place of his administration.

So long as no efforts were made to forestall the political action of the people, it was both wise and particle for all true friends of the Government to leave their influence to the suppression of the relation. That when it becomes evident that party machinery and official influence are being used to secure the people attended of the present of the present of the country and of freedom leavend, a chance in favor of river and purity and nationality, have no choice but to appeal at once to the people, before it shall be too late to secure a fair discussion of principles.

Those in behalf of whom this sommunication is made, have thoughtfully surveyed the political field, and have arrived at the following conclusions:

- 1. That, even were the re-election of Mr. Lincoln desirable, it is practically impossible against the union of influences which will oppose him.
- 2. That, should be be re-elected, his manifest tendincy towards compromises and temporary expedients of policy will become stronger during a second term than it has been in the first, and the sause of housen liberty and the dignity and honor of the nation, suffer proportionately; while the war may continue to languish during his whole a liministration, till the public debt shall become a hurden too great to he home.
- 3. That the patronage of the Government, through the necessities of the war, has less as rapidly increased, and to such an enormous extent, and so loosely placed, as to render the application of the "one-term principle" absolutely essential to the certain safety of our Republican Institutions.
- 4. That we find united in Hen. SALMON P. CHASE mere of the qualities needed in a President during the next four years, than are combined in any other available andidate; his resord, clear and unimpeachable, chowing him to be a stateoman of rare ability, and an administrator of the very highest order, while his private character furnishes the surest obtainable guaranty of economy and purity in the management of public affairs.
- 5. That the discussion of the Precidential question, already commenced by the friends of Mr. Lincoln, has developed a popularity and strength in Mr. CHASE, unexpected even to his warmest admirers; and while we are aware that this strength is at present unorganized and in no condition to manifest its real magnitude, we are satisfied that it only needs systematic and faithful effort, to develop it to an extent sufficient to everyone all apposing obstacles.

For these reasons, the friends of Mr. CHASE have determined on measures which the ll present his plains fairly and at once to the country. A Central organization has been effected, which already has its correction in all the States, and the object of which is to enable his friends everywhere, most effectually to promote his elevation is the Presidence. We wish the hearty co-operation of all those in favor of the speedy rectoration of the Union upon the basis of universal freedom, and who desire an administration of the Government during the first period of its new lift, which shall, the fullest extent, develop the capacity of free institutions, enlarge the resources of the country, diminish the burders of taxation, clevate the standard of public and private morality, vindicate the honor of the Fepullic Expire the world, and, in all things, make our American nationality the fairest example for imitation which human progress to a ever achieved.

If these objects meet your approval, you can render efficient aid by exerting your relf at once to organize your certion of the country, and by corresponding with the Chairman of the National Executive Committee, for the purpose either of receiving or imparting information.

Very respectfully.

A.C. Fornsny

The Institute of Museum and	Digitized by the in 2011 with t I Library Services	funding from	ana State Library	LSTA Grant

http://www.archive.org/details/letterinoppositi00pome

